primary income means the sum of the following incomes of a person in an income year:

- (a) investment income (if any) for the income year; and
- (b) commercial and residential rental income (if any) for the income year; and secondary income means the sum of all incomes of a person in an income year excluding his or her primary income

total income means the sum of the primary and secondary incomes of a person in an income year, whether an actual or estimated amount.

(2) For the purposes of subclause (1), majority income means—

- (a) a person's largest source of non-investment income in an income year, if the amount is more than 50% of the person's total non-investment income; or
- (b) if the person's largest source of non-investment income in an income year is 50% or less of the person's total non-investment income, a person's income from all non-investment income other than that largest source.

(3) For the purposes of subclause (2), non-investment income, in an income year, means a person's income from a source other than investment income and rental income.

2 Payments for pay periods of weekly duration

(1) From each payment of salary or wages where the payment is for a weekly pay period, the basic tax deduction—

- (a) for primary income, is the amount set out in Schedule 2A that corresponds to the weekly income amount:
- (b) for secondary income, is—
  - (i) 18.5% of the amount set out in Schedule 2A that corresponds to the weekly income amount, if the employee's total income is $30,000 or less for the income year; or
  - (ii) 27.5% of the amount set out in Schedule 2A that corresponds to the weekly income amount, if the employee's total income is more than $30,000 but less than $80,000; or
  - (iii) 30%, if the employee's total income is more than $80,000.

(2) Subclause (1)(b) applies unless the Collector otherwise determines under section 153.

3 Payments for pay periods of more than weekly duration

From each payment of salary or wages where the payment is for a pay period that is more than one week, the basic tax deduction is the amount determined in the following manner:

- Step 1: Calculate the part of the payment that is equivalent to one week. For this purpose, overtime pay included in the payment (if any) and the balance of the payment must be treated as accruing at a uniform daily rate throughout the pay period.
- Step 2: Calculate the basic tax deduction for the notional weekly amount in accordance with clause 2 and the amounts set out in Schedule 2A.
- Step 3: Multiply the amount calculated under Step 2 by the total payment for the pay period then divide that amount by the payment equivalent to one week.

4 Payments for other cases

From each payment of salary or wages where neither clause 1 nor 2 applies, the basic tax deduction is, in respect of so much of the payment as is for the services of the employee during any week ending with a Saturday (calculated in accordance with section 150, if applicable), the amount that would be made under clause 1 and Schedule 2A if the payment or the part payment, as the case may be, were for a weekly pay period ending with that Saturday.

5 Payments for employees with “no declaration” tax code

- (1) From each payment of salary or wages to an employee to whom a “no declaration” tax code applies under section 149, the basic tax deduction is 30 cents for every dollar or part of a dollar of payment.
- (2) Subclause (1) applies regardless of whether the deduction is for primary income or secondary income.

6 Extra emoluments

From each payment of an extra emolument, the basic tax deduction is 30 cents for every dollar or part of a dollar of payment.

Schedule 2A
PAYE Schedule from 1 January 2014
